

Patent Application of Filza G. Potapova for “attachable sitting device buttsy”
(continued)

Claims:

What I claim as my invention is:

[0019] I. a method of attaching a sitting device around person’s waist or lower back in order to avoid carrying said device in one’s hands, comprising:

1. light-weight, flexible, water-resistant, and insulating cushion, which is attached to a person’s body using the methods, comprising:

- a. the method of attaching said sitting device with the help of string/strap type of means, one end of which is secured in each corner of said sitting device.
- b. the method of attaching said sitting device with the help of retractable strings coiled in a plastic container which is secured in each corner of said device.
- c. the method of attaching said sitting device where two strings coming from each corner of said device are connected by a strap.